Human Nature and Conduct - Part 2, The Place of Instinct In Conduct

John DEWEY \(1859 - 1952\)

Part 2 describes Dewey's concept of IMPULSES which are the interaction of one's SELF with the environment. When HABITS are blocked, Impulses modify habits and/or modify the environment. "Nature vs Nurture" explanations of someone's personality are deceptive and fallacious - they are the two sides of the same coin. The prime mover of conduct is HABIT, not Reason.

Innate behaviors are habits which culture has solidified as CUSTOMS. Customs are rigid. And, because one's environment is always changing, customs and supporting habits are continually being tested. Education should lead youth away from society's dysfunctional habits.
